

Transnet Senior Executives Issued with letters of Precautionary Suspension

[Johannesburg; 04 February 2019] Eight Transnet senior executives have been issued with letters of precautionary suspension resulting from past internal audit and forensic reports that were not implemented by management at Transnet.

The decision to issue precautionary suspensions was taken after a realization that reports done over a number of years have been piling up, with no follow up. The impression has thus been created that forensic reports findings were only followed up to selected employees.

In order to ensure equity and fairness to all affected, Transnet has sourced an external support service to conclude and finalize recommendations made in these reports.

Transnet Acting Chief Executive, Mr. Tau Morwe said: "The letters were issued to senior executives ranging from general managers and executive managers who were implicated in reports dating as far back as 2011.

Recommendations emanating from the reports were not followed up by the management. We have been receiving anonymous complaints from employees about some of the allegations covered in the reports."

The senior executives have been given 48 hours to respond - give reasons - as to why they should not be suspended.

Detailed charges can be pronounced upon once all investigations have been concluded.

This is all being done pursuant to the objective of ensuring good corporate governance and restorations of the integrity of the company.

The suspensions are being handled in an open and transparent manner, and the rights of affected employees respected.
