

Today, we celebrated the outstanding achievement of Transnet's latest cohort of graduates from the Women in Leadership Development (SheLeads) programme at Wits Business School.

This milestone marks not only a significant step in their personal and professional growth but also reinforces the future of business leadership—empowering women to drive change, innovation, and inclusivity in the industry.

Board Chairperson, Dr. Andile Sangqu, Group Chief Executive, Adv. Michelle Phillips, Chief Operating Officer, Solly Letsoalo, Chief of People Management and Learning, Itumeleng Matsheka, and Chief Financial Officer, Nosipho Maphumulo, joined in celebrating the 51 inspiring women and their contributions to shaping a more diverse and dynamic business landscape.

"Celebrating this achievement with determination and resilience reflects an unwavering commitment to excellence, courage, and leadership—not just within Transnet, but across the country and beyond," Michelle Phillips shared.

Dr. Sangqu emphasized that learning extends beyond obtaining a qualification—it is a continuous journey of growth, both formally and informally.

This graduation is yet another powerful step towards advancing careers and driving meaningful transformation in the business world.
